

Donor Privacy Policy

The American Childhood Cancer Organization appreciates the trust donors place in our organization when they contribute. We will not share, sell or trade donors' personal or contact information with anyone else, nor will we send information or mailings on behalf of any other organization. Donors may request they not be solicited in the future and may request they not receive our newsletter or any other information we may send out. We want donors to be confident that their trust in our work is valued and we respect their rights.