A THINKING GAME BROUGHT TO YOU BY  childhood AMERICAN CANCER ORGANIZATION

If you're a cancer warrior, you know what it's like to be stuck inside and bored. Games are a great way to pass the time with family and friends. Here's a puzzling game little game that makes you think! With several difficulty levels, kids and adults of all ages can play together.

Take a look at the board: it's a coloring sheet! Break out the crayons and decorate it however you like!

If you don't have a dice or playing pieces, cut the page here!

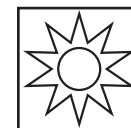

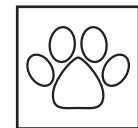

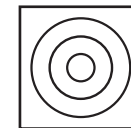

NO DICE?

Cut out this one!

You'll need a little tape!

You can color, cut out, and use these as playing pieces to keep track of where you are on the board.

RULES

The goal is to get from the start to the end! Everyone starts on the “start” space. Take turns rolling the dice and moving your piece.

If you land on ACTION:

Look at the Action menu. Roll the dice to see what your action is. If you perform the action, you can roll the dice and move your piece again!

If you land on NAME FIVE:

Look at the Name Five menu. Roll the dice twice: once to pick your category, and again to pick your letters. If you can name five things in the category starting with only those letters, you can roll the dice and move your piece again! If you can't name five, your turn is over.

(Want a challenge? Make a rule that no one can repeat the same word that someone else has used. Want an even harder challenge? Instead of using all three letters, just pick one!)

(Any little players in the game? They can name five words in a specific category OR with specific letters, instead of needing to do both. Even younger players can treat all Name Five spaces as Action spaces instead.)

If you land on a BLANK space:

Your turn is over. Let the next person play!
